MARY WASHINGTON COLLEGE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA is ideally and strategically located amidst the finest traditions of Old Virginia, almost in the shadow of the Nation's Capital, and accessible to the great centers of culture of the East.

The environment is both inspiring and romantic because of its colorful past and the peculiar blending of life of early Colonial days with the life of today in a manner to be found nowhere else in America.

Here you may spend your college days where you can look down upon the boyhood home of George Washington; the home of his sister; the home and tomb of his mother, for whom the college is named; and within a few minutes drive of Wakefield, his birthplace, and of Mount Vernon, the home of his mature years. What could be more delightful than Fredericksburg—"America's Most Historic City"—filled with romance and history?

This is a delightful place to spend the summer. The social and recreational opportunities and facilities are exceptional—spacious campus, beautiful groves, two roof gardens, large recreation halls, commodious indoor and outdoor swimming pools, picturesque golf course on campus, amphitheatre, motion pictures, tennis court, gymnasium, athletic fields, saddle horses, and rustic camp with cabin including all conveniences.

In addition, there are formal receptions and dinners, teas, formal and informal entertainment, tours, etc. A delightful home atmosphere adds to the contentment and happiness of the student body.

The Summer Session is an integral part of the college year, and the course offerings are approximately the same as for the general session. Its purpose is to meet the needs of (a) high school graduates who desire to enter college in June instead of waiting until September, and thus saving much valuable time; (b) the ever-increasing number of students regularly enrolled in college who desire to continue their studies in the summer in order to complete the requirements for a degree in three calendar years instead of four; (c) those who desire to make up some required work or to compensate for loss of time due to illness or some other reason; and (d) teachers who desire to renew or raise certificates or to take additional work toward a degree.

LIVING ACCOMMODATIONS

The residence halls provide ample and comfortable housing facilities. The newer buildings afford every convenience and comfort—rooms with connecting bath, circulating ice water, beautifully appointed drawing rooms, lounge rooms, large porches and arcades, pressing rooms, kitchenettes, shower baths, incineration, etc.

The dormitory rooms are completely furnished with single beds, dressers, study tables, chairs, bookcases, and built-in closets. The student is expected to furnish four sheets, two pillow cases, bedspreads, towels, soap, and other articles desired.

A limited number of house-keeping apartments are available to married couples or mature students in Betty Lewis Hall, which is located just outside the college gates. Occupants may take their meals in the college dining halls if preferred. The apartments range in size from one to four rooms and are furnished as dormitory rooms with kitchenette facilities. Full information, including rates, may be obtained from the Treasurer of the college.
